Dorothy lived in the midst of the great Kansas prairies, with Uncle Henry, who was a farmer, and Aunt Em, who was the farmer's wife. Their house was small, for the lumber to build it had to be carried by wagon many miles.

No matter how dreary and gray our homes are, we people of flesh and blood would rather live there than in any other country, be it ever so beautiful. There is no place like home.

You have plenty of courage, I am sure," answered Oz. "All you need is confidence in yourself. There is no living thing that is not afraid when it faces danger. The true courage is in facing danger when you are afraid, and that kind of courage you have in plenty."

Dorothy now took Toto up solemnly in her arms, and having said one last good-bye she clapped the heels of her shoes together three times, saying: "Take me home to Aunt Em!"

Fact, Fiction, and Fantasy

Books can be classified by genre. Do you know the difference between fiction and non-fiction?

Fiction books are partly or wholly imaginary. They include settings, characters, and events that were invented by the author.

Non-fiction books, on the other hand, are books based completely on real or true people, places, and events.

L. Frank Baum's OZ works are fiction. They are a type of fiction known as fantasy.

Read through the characteristics of fantasy on the next page and give examples of how the OZ books fit the classification of fantasy.
